An American man flew his Harry Potter-loving girlfriend to England so he could propose at Surbiton station.

But his plan was almost scuppered by weekend train cancellations.

Samuel Goetsch, 24, flew with his fiancée-to-be Stephanie Dodds, 25, all the way from Houston, Texas, to propose in the station, which has a pivotal scene in Harry Potter and the Half Blood Prince.

When he realised the trains were not running Mr Goetsch had to think of a reason to get the bus to the station or risk his carefully planned surprise falling apart.

Mr Goetsch's father Stephen, who lives in Ashford, Surrey, attended the proposal.

He said: "My son wanted to ask Stephanie to marry him there because the scene in the movie is all about new beginnings.

"I don't think he thought it would be a problem getting to the station, but it didn't go as smoothly as he thought.

"Stephanie had no idea so my son had to do some quick thinking working up a reason to get her to the station.

"He had to pretend he had some business in Surbiton and convince her to go with him."

The couple met while they were both studying abroad in Japan in 2011. They headed back to Texas the day after the proposal.

Mr Goetsch said: "They were actually in Japan at the time of the huge earthquake so I guess there are quite a few times in their relationship when things haven't gone as smoothly as possible.

"This was Stephanie's first visit to England and it's great that it is definitely one she will remember."

Mr Goetsch brought a copy of the Harry Potter book with him to present to his fiancée along with the engagement ring.

Caroline Landu was working at the station when the proposal took place.

She said: "It's not something you see every day so I got them to pose for a photo with the book.

"I found out they were big Harry Potter fans so it is a romantic thing to do."

Tributes to former Tiffin boy and dentistry graduate

The headteacher of Tiffin School has paid tribute to a former student found dead less than 24 hours after going missing this week.

The body of Aaron Gurnail, 24, pictured, from Raeburn Avenue, Berrylands, was found in Dorking on Tuesday morning, January 6.

He had last been seen at 4pm on Monday, January 5, sparking a police appeal to find him via Twitter.

Mr Gurnail's next-of-kin have been informed and his death is not being treated as suspicious.

Mr Gurnail was a trainee dentist who graduated from Kings College London, having attended Tiffin School in Kingston between 2001 and 2008.

He was also the recipient of the best chemistry student award while at the school's sixth form.

Tiffin headteacher Hilda Clarke said: "It is tragic news. Our thoughts are very much with Aaron's family. He was a very good student at Tiffin and went on to study dentistry."

"He came back to the school on several occasions to take part in talking to sixth formers about studying dentistry."

"Aaron is a well-remembered student at Tiffin School and I know that the whole of the school community would want to express their deep sadness at the loss of somebody so young who had a bright future ahead of him."

According to Mr Gurnail's LinkedIn profile, he was the president of the Tiffin Medical and Dental Society, a group of former Tiffinians holding annual mock interviews, reviewing personal statements and providing talks for prospective medical and dental students. It also stated he had spent a month volunteering as a dental volunteer in Ghana and worked as a dental trainee at Abbey Dental Surgery in Slough.

Clegg's hospital visit

REPORTER

JON SHARMAN

jon.sharman@london.newsquest.co.uk

Deputy Prime Minister Nick Clegg visited Kingston Hospital on Monday to shore up his Liberal Democrat colleague Edward Davey's nascent election campaign.

Mr Clegg has positioned his party as the sensible choice between the Conservatives and Labour, particularly on the NHS, which he said the Lib Dems would fund in line with growth in the economy.

He criticised the Tories' "ideologically extreme assertion that they want to carry on cutting, cutting money for public services" and added: "Labour can't commit to this - they would still be spending a lot of extra money on interest payments [on the nation's financial shortfall]. We have struck the right balance."

An extra £2bn was promised by Chancellor George Osborne in last year's autumn statement, which Mr Davey said his party "pushed for" behind the scenes.

However, hospitals in south-west London must find hundreds of millions of pounds-worth of savings due to national cuts, and Kingston Hospital's chief executive Kate Grimes said her team was "struggling" to pare back what she said was already a highly-efficient service.

An extra billion or two may seem dwarfed by the overall NHS budget - more than £90bn - but Ms Grimes believes even that amount could be vital if some trickles down to her hospital.

Visit: Nick Clegg and Ed Davey chat to a patient
Deadline: KT89245

She said: "If we can get a proportion of that it will make a really big difference."

"Next year we are required to make a 3.8 per cent efficiency saving which is about nearly £10m. We are really struggling to find that."

"We've got a number of very significantly under-funded services it would really help."

That includes the intensive care unit and the maternity unit, where both Mr Davey's children, as well as Mr Clegg's third son Miguel, were born.

Ms Grimes said of the department, which must make an £800,000 cut next year: "Its costs are midwives and doctors. Where do you look to make a saving?"

The hospital boss has previously said she will take the trust into financial deficit before having to make cuts that would impact patient care.

Mr Davey said this morning that the share of the extra autumn statement cash coming to health services in Kingston will be above the national average.

That will mean another £5.88m in the coffers in 2015-16 for GPs on Kingston's clinical commissioning group.

The group has had to find its own cuts, described last year as "far in excess of what is considered achievable" by clinicians working on the south-west London collaborative commissioning review, the successor to the controversial Better Services, Better Value scheme.

KINGSMEADOW: Kingstonian to look for new home if Dons sell ground to Chelsea Blues bid could see Ks on move

NEWS EDITOR

ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

Kingstonian football club has announced plans to leave its Kingsmeadow home – if the ground is sold to Premier League giants Chelsea.

The non-league club, who have played at the stadium in Norbiton for the past 25 years, said in a statement staying at the ground was “not a practical option” should it be sold by current owners AFC Wimbledon.

Last week our sister paper the Surrey Comet revealed AFC Wimbledon were in talks with Chelsea over buying Kingsmeadow if the Dons’ bid to build a new stadium in their spiritual home of Merton was successful.

This week it was also

To be sold?
Kingsmeadow
Deadlinepix KT89221

reported by the Guardian newspaper that AFC Wimbledon would pay a “significant contribution” toward helping Ks find a new home – rumoured to be in the region of £1m.

But Kingstonian co-chairman Mark Anderson, who runs the club alongside fellow owners Malcolm Winwright and John Fenwick, declined to confirm the figure.

He said: “We are having an ongoing conversation with AFC Wimbledon and of course finances have been discussed, but we haven’t discussed figures.

“We like to see it as an opportunity, and we are embracing it.

“We have already identified two or three options that are open to us, and are very confident, whatever happens.”

Mr Anderson said the club had been looking at prospective new home grounds “for the past couple of months”.

But should the Dons’ plans for an 11,000-seater stadium in Wimbledon be turned down, Mr Anderson did not rule out Ks staying at Kingsmeadow for a while longer.

He said: “It all depends on Wimbledon’s success and Chelsea’s continued desire to purchase the ground.

“As long as those two things carry on, then we carry on.

“If one of those things fell down, then we aren’t back to square one, but we’ve got another five or six years left on our deal with AFC Wimbledon anyway.”

Kingsmeadow was opened in 1989 as the home ground for Kingstonian.

In 2002, the newly-formed AFC Wimbledon began playing home games as tenants, before buying the ground from Ks’ controversial former chairman Rajesh Khosla in 2003, who pocketed £2.5m from the deal.

Since then, Kingstonian have stayed on as tenants.

But Mr Anderson assured Ks fans: “The simple fact is Kingstonian fans have been let down in the past, and I want to make clear that Malcolm, John and myself are not doing this for any monetary gain for ourselves.”

Rail work

Train passengers in south-west London are set for a series of frustrating travel weekends while major engineering work takes place in the Wimbledon area.

Trains will not be running to Waterloo during weekends in January and February from many south-west London stations due to the works.

No trains will run between Clapham Junction and Surbiton or between Clapham Junction and Kingston via Wimbledon during weekends until the middle of February. A bus replacement service will run between Clapham Junction and Surbiton.

Berrylands station will have no service at all on weekends until early February and passengers are advised to take the K2 bus service between Surbiton and Kingston, which will accept valid train tickets.

Due to the large number of alterations a special timetable for individual routes has not been published.

Georgia on her mind after New Year birth

A first-time mother gave birth to a healthy baby girl on New Year’s Day – one of eight born on January 1 at Kingston Hospital.

Bronwyn Gardner, from Hinchley Wood, gave birth to 6lb 7oz Georgia Jess Gardner at 1.23am after a long labour.

Both the mother and baby are now at home with father Dean Gardner.

Mrs Gardner said: “I am very tired because I haven’t really had the time to catch up on sleep yet after the birth.

“She has been extremely good so far.

“It has been hard, but she seems to be sleeping and eating really well at the moment.

“The staff at Kingston Hospital were absolutely great.

“We couldn’t have asked for better care.”

TfL works see six-week closure for busy road

REPORTER

jon.sharman@london.newsquest.co.uk

A key route between Chessington and Epsom will be closed for six weeks while works to improve the cross-roads at Malden Rushett take place.

The Transport for London (TfL) works, that will see a new pedestrian crossing in Fair Oak Lane and widened carriageways to aid turning, began in the autumn.

Rushett Lane will be closed from now until Friday, February 20.

Surrey County councillors met with TfL planners, who said the full closure, which is taking place during

Affected areas: A map showing the closures

Chessington World of Adventures' winter closure, was the least disruptive option they considered.

Councillor Eber Kingston said: "If motorists opt to change their normal travel plans and travel outside peak times, this will assist in reducing the number of vehicles on the road at these times, which may have a positive effect.

"However, any severe weather, a road accident, or disruption along the A3 or M25 will have an adverse effect on traffic and will increase the level of congestion and delays."

A TfL spokesman said: "This six-week closure of Rushett Lane will allow us to carry out improvement works, including drainage installation, reinstatement of utility services and carriageway resurfacing."

"A signed diversion route will be in place for traffic and we will endeavour to keep any disruption to a minimum."

Repairs: London's air ambulance

Picture: Jon Sharman

London's lifesaving air ambulance will be grounded for the next three weeks for repairs.

The 24-hour helicopter service, a registered charity, saves countless lives each year by swooping to aid critically injured people at road crashes, crime scenes and other major incidents.

It treats an average of six people every 24 hours.

But it has no back-up helicopter at the moment.

London Air Ambulance says on its website: "When seconds count, the most effective way to reach critically injured patients is by helicopter."

But Graham Hodgkin, chief executive of the charity, said critically injured people would be taken directly to hospital by ambulance.

The service covers 10m people within the M25 area and costs £5m a year to run.

About £1.3m of the running costs are paid for by the NHS, but it still has to find millions each year to keep going.

Barts Health NHS Trust pays for the trauma doctors and London Air Ambulance pays for the paramedics.

Father-in-law of dead man criticises halving of killer's sentence

'Is this what a life is worth these days?'

REPORTER

RACHAEL BURFORD

rachael.burford@
london.newsquest.co.uk

The father-in-law of a man killed in a random attack by a violent alcoholic has spoken out about the killer's sentence being halved.

Michael Broom, 50, of Rhodrons Avenue, Hook, punched father-of-four Mark Haley once in a "petty dispute" outside Tesco in Hook Parade on August 21, 2011, and was charged with grievous bodily harm for the assault.

Mr Haley spent two years in a coma before dying at the Royal Hospital for Neuro-Disability in Putney on August 28 last year, leading to a fresh investigation into a manslaughter charge for Broom.

Judge Richard Hone QC, sentenced Broom to two years in prison for manslaughter on December 22, only to reduce the sentence to just one year the following day.

David Davies, Mr Haley's father-in-law, said: "By the time Michael Broom is released from prison he will have served a total of 37 months for the crime.

Attacker: Michael Broom had his sentence halved

"Is this what a life in Britain is worth these days, three years one month?"

BT engineer Mr Haley had only been out to buy a pint of milk when he was assaulted and was airlifted to hospital after suffering injuries from the punch that caused him to fall backward and hit his head on a pole.

Broom, also a father, was known in the area for being "the local drunk" and had drunk two cans of alcohol on the day of the attack.

He had also taken his shirt off before launching the punch.

Broom will serve at least six months in jail before being released on licence.

Mr Davies said: "Without explanation or without informing the police or Mark Haley's family the judge reduced the sentence to one year, of which Michael Broom will serve six months.

"How could this happen? "What has happened to British justice?"

Until 1996 if someone died more than a year and a day after an attack their assailant could not be charged with murder or manslaughter.

Harassed after declining help

A man who offered to repair a woman's flat tyre and then followed her when she refused, has been told he must carry out 140 hours of unpaid work for harassing her.

Gwan Hahn, 39, waited for the woman to return to the Kingston University car park where she found her car tyre had been punctured.

Hahn, from Keswick Avenue, Kingston Vale, then offered to help fix the tyre, but after declining his help and calling the AA, the 23-year-old woman found him following her.

She pulled into a nearby garage and managed to lose him before calling police on July 17 this year.

A police officer making enquiries the following day found Hahn fixing another woman's tyre in the same car park.

He was sentenced at Wimbledon Magistrates' Court on December 10 after being found guilty of harassment following a trial.

Hahn was ordered to pay compensation of £60, costs of £100, and carry out 140 hours of unpaid work in the next 12 months.

He must also attend regular appointments with a supervisor.

Teen charged over Mercedes crash

A teenager has appeared in court after allegedly failing to stop for police before crashing a Mercedes in Kingston.

The 16 year-old, from Kensington, who cannot be named for legal reasons, appeared at Wimbledon Magistrates' Court on Thursday, December 18.

He is charged with driving a vehicle without consent in Wheatfield Way, failing to stop, cannabis possession, not driving in accordance with licensing in Eden Street, driving without insurance and driving dangerously around College roundabout.

The chase is alleged to have come to a close when the car smashed into a traffic light pole.

The teenager will next appear at Wimbledon Magistrates' Court on January 14.

BURGLARY CHARGES:

A man has been charged with a series of burglaries at pensioners' homes in the Surbiton, Worcester Park, Ewell and Chessington areas. Michael Sammie, 47, of Brimsdown Road, Enfield, has been charged with four counts of burglary from October last year. He was remanded in custody and will next appear at Kingston Crown Court on Friday, March 20.

DRIVING BAN:

A man has been disqualified from driving for two years after he was caught drink-driving on his motorbike. Alexandre Leon Leplumey, 27, from Wandsworth, drove his BMW bike down Kingston Hill on November 22 with 98 microgrammes of alcohol in 100ml of breath. Leplumey, who pleaded guilty at an earlier hearing, was sentenced on December 9. He must also carry out 60 hours of community work and take part in a safe driving course.

TV THIEF:

A resident of Surbiton YMCA stole a television set from Asda in Roehampton Vale. Justin Dyke, 34, admitted taking the TV, worth £499, and will be sentenced at Wimbledon Magistrates' Court on January 14.

Hard work and community spirit

REPORTER

JON SHARMANjon.sharman@
london.newsquest.co.uk

The spirit of Seething Wells has been given the royal seal of approval after Creative Youth's chairman of trustees Robin Hutchinson was recognised in the New Year's Honours list.

The noted cheese-lover and creator of events such as Seething Ski Sunday and the Surbiton Food Festival will be made an MBE in recognition of his services to the arts and community in Surbiton and Kingston.

Mr Hutchinson, 56, the former Labour group leader on Kingston Council, has lived in the borough for most of his life.

He was a founding trustee of both the Rose Theatre and the Douglas Centre, now the Cornerhouse community arts centre.

He said: "This honour is really for all the wonderful people who have helped, supported and given their time and energy to make brilliant things happen in the borough."

"In particular, my beautiful wife Ann and my family deserve medals for everything they have done and for putting up with me."

Mr Hutchinson was awarded an honorary degree from Kingston University in 2009 for his arts and charity work.

Creative Youth trustee Brett Alderson said: "This award is just recognition for Robin's wealth of achievements in the arts and the wide positive impact of his ideas and energy."

"His vision, leadership and tenacity have changed the arts landscape in the UK, particularly for young people."

"With his innovative, unique and frequently strange ideas and enthusiasm, Robin is an inspiration to many and a huge asset to the community."

Mr Hutchinson's honour is one of 473 MBEs to be handed out in the latest round of awards.

● A former chief executive of Kingston Chamber of Commerce has also been made an MBE for services to young people and small businesses.

Honoured: Robin Hutchinson; Lisa Gagliani

Lisa Gagliani spent 11 years as chief executive before leaving to take up the role of chief executive of the Bright Ideas Trust in 2012.

The Bright Ideas Trust helps disadvantaged young people in London get into work.

Mrs Gagliani was also chairwoman for the Young Enterprise Richmond and Kingston area board between 2004 and 2009, and her other community roles have included being a director of town centre managers Kingstonfirst and working as a children's grant-making panel member for the Thames Community Foundation.

In 2012, Mrs Gagliani was recognised by the mayor of Kingston for her work in the community.

Mrs Gagliani, of Thames Ditton, was nominated by former colleagues at Bright Ideas Trust.

She said that when the official letter confirming the honour came through the door, she thought: "Well, that's odd."

She said: "I am used to getting cabinet office correspondence at my work, but not at home."

"You're sworn to secrecy."

"It was a bit like being a kid, being given a fabulous present at Christmas, but being told not to tell anyone about it. All you want to do is go outside and tell everybody."

"I was really touched. It was a really kind and generous thing to do."

● A detective whose team busted a sex trafficking ring operating from a brothel behind Surbiton station was made an OBE.

Kevin Hyland, formerly a detective inspector with the Metropolitan Police, retired last summer and was recently appointed the UK's first anti-slavery commissioner.

His team convicted Leatherhead man Michael Dalton, his ex Nikki Chen and others in July 2009, raiding a brothel in Glenbuck Court in the process.

WARD ATTACK:

A hospital patient has admitted attacking a man in a mental health ward in Tolworth. Koushk Salehi-Bakhtiari, 26, of Springfield Hospital, Tooting, pleaded guilty to grievous bodily harm with intent, and wounding or inflicting grievous bodily harm without intent when he appeared at Kingston Crown Court on December 18. The attack happened in Tolworth Hospital's Lilac ward on May 1, 2014. Salehi-Bakhtiari will be sentenced on January 30.

MEN BAILED:

Two men arrested over an alleged homophobic assault in Surbiton on Halloween have been re-bailed by police. Investigators released the men after they returned to a west London police station in mid December. They must return in early February.

DIABETES HELP:

GPs want to hear residents' views on how health services for diabetes sufferers can be improved. A forum event will be held in the Richard Mayo Centre, Eden Street, on Tuesday, January 27, from 7pm to 9pm. Tips, guidance and support will be given by expert speakers.

Alcoholic sentenced

An alcoholic who stole a bottle of vodka and damaged shelves at a Tesco store has been sentenced to alcohol treatment.

Robert Keay, 26, of Fair Oak Lane, Chessington, admitted stealing the £13 bottle of alcohol and damaging shelves valued at up to £230 at Tesco in Tolworth Broadway on December 4, last year.

Keay will have six months to comply with his alcohol treatment requirement and he must attend meetings with an officer, a magistrate ruled at Wimbledon Magistrates' Court on January 2.

He must also pay £130 before the end of the month.

Patient with rare disorder calls for more people from Asian community to join list 'Sign up to organ donor register'

REPORTER

RACHAEL BURFORD

rachael.burford@
london.newsquest.co.uk

A Worcester Park man who suffers from a rare genetic disorder is urging people to make joining the organ donor register their New Year's resolution.

Hemong Patel, 44, had Alport's syndrome diagnosed while at college. The condition causes gradual scarring of the kidneys resulting in eventual kidney failure.

Mr Patel is of Indian descent and hospitals struggle to find matching donor organs because fewer people from the Asian community have signed up to be on the donor register.

Mr Patel said: "I think that is a generational thing at the moment. It is not something my parents ever thought of doing, but it is extremely important."

"When I have asked people, about 90 per cent agree with the idea of organ donation, but only around 20 per cent of people have actually signed up."

"If we could get everyone who agrees with donation to register in the new year we would be in a much better position."

Despite receiving dialysis three times a week, Mr Patel has a full time job as a digital marketing specialist and is also working on an MA in social media.

Mr Patel said he remains positive about his treatment and is hopeful of getting a transplant.

He said: "If all this had happened to me now I think I would have reacted very differently."

"Don't get me wrong dialysis is difficult – even more so when you are young and everyone in your unit is older than you."

"However, I believe I have coped well. I have always taken the view that dialysis is something I do three times a week for a few hours."

"It is not the end of the world and many people are much worse off than me."

About 31 per cent of Kingston residents are on the organ donor register, 5 per cent more than the London average, however those waiting for transplants still believe this is too low.

Sally Johnson, NHS Blood and Transplant's director of organ donation and transplantation, said: "Without organ donors there can be no transplantation."

"But to help the 10,000 people in the UK currently in need of a transplant, it is vital the number of families agreeing to donation taking place increases."

Mr Patel said: "I hope for the new year people just take a few moments to register themselves."

● To join the NHS organ donor register, visit organ.donation.nhs.uk, call 03001 232323 or text SAVE to 62323.

Pair intimidated trial witness

Two people have been jailed for intimidating a witness in a trial.

Michelle Dooley was a victim of intimidation between July and August last year.

Melvyn Alan Tucker, 41, of Marys Grove, Richmond, and Lindsay McDonald, 33, of Langdon Park, Teddington, pleaded guilty to one count of intimidation.

Tucker went to the victim's home address with a plank of wood on August 7 and McDonald sent Miss Dooley intimidating phone calls, text messages and intimidated her in person between July 10 and August 8.

They were both jailed for nine months and ordered to pay a £100 victim surcharge at their sentencing on December 9.

Man cleared

A Kingston man has been cleared of raping a woman in a car park.

Mohammed Elhusni Alkielelani, 49, of Fairfield South, was accused of two counts of rape at Homebase car park in Twickenham Road, Feltham, on June 12, last year.

He was acquitted following a trial at Kingston Crown Court on December 17.

ATTACK DENIED: Two women have denied attacking a man in Kingston. Natalia Connelly, 35, of East Road, Kingston, and a 17-year-old who cannot be named for legal reasons, appeared at Kingston Crown Court on December 18. Both are charged with wounding or inflicting grievous bodily harm without intent. The alleged attack is believed to have happened on March 31. A trial will take place at Kingston Crown Court on February 4.

DEAD MAN NAMED: A man who died after apparently falling from a window in a Surbiton block of flats has been named. Thomas Edward Nichol, 44, died on Monday, December 17, in St Leonard's Road. An inquest into the death of Mr Nichol, who lived in Rouillac, France, was opened and adjourned on December 22. The provisional cause of death was listed as head injuries.

FRAUD CHARGE: A man from New Malden has appeared in court charged with defrauding a vulnerable man out of almost £5,000. Sohail Ayub, 24, of Sheephouse Way, appeared at Wimbledon Magistrates' Court on January 2. He will next appear on Friday, January 16.

Decision on waste should be reversed

[I wrote a] letter to MP Zac Goldsmith urging him to intervene, while there is still time, and reverse the dreadful decision by his Conservative colleagues in Kingston to downgrade the recycling of non-food waste from weekly to fortnightly.

Although I have received no reply from Mr Goldsmith, he has seen fit to address the points I made in an angry blog post on his website.

As this is the closest we have to a reply, I am happy to address the points he makes.

Mr Goldsmith's approach to this issue has been deeply partisan and disappointingly aggressive.

He accused me and other Liberal Democrats of spreading lies, when in fact we have set out the precise plan that the Conservatives have themselves put before the council.

I believe residents have a right to know the truth and it is a fact, not a scare story, that the Tories are changing recycling of all but food from a weekly to a fortnightly service.

This was, in fact, the ideal opportunity for Mr Goldsmith to turn his warm words into action and, as he said, "work cross-party for a much more coherent approach to tackling our appalling wastefulness as a nation". He has failed to do that.

More surprising, however, is his apparent confusion over the difference between public consultation and telephone market research.

When the current recycling system was introduced, there was extensive consultation, debate and discussion and the system was piloted for several months before being introduced borough-wide.

But these new changes are being rushed through, with most of the information still not being made available to the public, with just cursory telephone research as justification.

If Mr Goldsmith had taken time to read what background material is nevertheless in the public domain, he would have seen the summary of comments from those residents who were telephoned.

Overall, respondents were generally "unsupportive" of the proposed changes to the recycling collection that would see a fortnightly collection on alternate weeks.

Residents reported concerns about the build-up of recyclables and the storage required for recyclables over a two-week period, potential hygiene aspects, and a perceived decrease in the quality of the service, without any resultant decrease in the council tax.

I agree. That is why I am encouraging Kingston residents to sign our petition at bit.ly/1t5A5sz to help us stop this unreasonable proposal.

There is still time for Mr Goldsmith and the Conservatives to swallow their pride and put this situation right for the good of the community and the environment, but we are now very close to the wire.

If the weekly collections work, why change them?

Further to Councillor Cunningham's letter [See top right], the proposal for recycling is for different items to be collected in alternative weeks – and will save the council £4.2m.

The saving will take seven years, which he failed to mention in his letter, so it is not a quick saving, like it sounded.

This administration should be coming up with smarter ways of saving money, rather than cutting services that are working.

In opposition, the Conservatives criticised the funds that were wasted numerous times – for example, the Rose Theatre, and the high salaries paid to the chief executive and senior council officers. Have these been cut?

The council recently wasted £95,000 on the Kingston Survey, which received only 15 per cent feedback.

If the weekly collections work, why change them?

DANIEL GOODGER
 Via email

Tory newspeak

Councillor Cunningham confirms the introduction of Orwellian Tory "newspeak" – for fortnight, read week [See letter, top right].

He claimed that weekly recycling will continue. Tell that to the person who reads a newspaper on the day paper is collected, who eats a can of beans on the day metal is collected or who has a bottle of wine on the day glass is collected.

That person will have to store that item for a further 13 days in order to continue to recycle under the proposed routine. That makes two weeks in my calendar.

DAVE RYDER-MILLS
 Kingston

Changes to save £4.2m

First printed in our sister newspaper the Surrey Comet on December 19:

Kingston Council is not considering moving all recycling collections to a fortnightly cycle.

The proposal is for weekly collections to take place, but the collections will be picking up paper and card one week, and then glass, plastic and cans the following week.

Other collections will remain unchanged.

In this way, the council will save £4.2m.

This makes up approximately the salaries of 17 teachers or social workers over the course of the contract.

Surely that makes good economic sense?

COUNCILLOR
DAVID CUNNINGHAM

Consign new plans to bin

Councillor Cunningham is splitting hairs in order to try to justify the council's unfathomable proposals on waste collection [see letter above].

He claimed there will still be weekly rounds, but each one will only collect half the recycling (two staggered fortnightly collections) so they will indeed be moved to a fortnightly cycle.

However you look at it, under these proposals, residents will have to store twice as much waste, and risk having to hang on to it for up to a month if they get confused and put the wrong box out, or simply happen to be away when the binmen are due.

And it cannot be efficient for the crews and wagons to still do a weekly round but only collect half the refuse?

The major cost is surely the crews. The most efficient way of operating is to collect everything every time they make their rounds, however infrequent that has to be.

There is also no mention of food waste – that at least must be collected every week for hygiene reasons.

I trust the council will consign this bizarre and inefficient proposal to the bin.

Jerome K Jerome's classic tale Three Men in a Boat turned 125 last year and as part of the anniversary tour the stage version will be coming to Kingston's Rose Theatre in February, writes Rachael Burford.

Actors including Anna Westlake, David Patridge and Tom Hackney take to the stage in this story of boating misadventure.

Directed by Craig Gilbert, the story follows three friends, J, Harris and George, and their dog attempting to escape the stresses of city life with hilarious consequences.

Jerome originally intended his book to be a serious travel guide to boating along the Thames, but the amusing elements of the story have turned it into a quintessentially British tale of folly, mischief and friendship.

Gilbert's production combines a working pub, live piano music, music hall singing and a dog with boat loads of physical comedy.

Produced by the Original Theatre Company and the Theatre Royal Bury St Edmunds, this tour follows runs around the country in 2012 and 2014.

Alistair Whatley, director of the Original Theatre Company, says: "Jerome K Jerome has been accused of writing the funniest book of all time.

"Now, just over 125 years later, it still has the power to make people laugh uncontrollably in public places. Craig Gilbert's adaptation also manages to make people laugh uncontrollably, but in the safety of a theatre."

YEAR of the SHEEP

CHINESE NEW YEAR

New Year's Eve can always be a bit of an anti-climax, writes Rachael Burford. Still stuffed, tired and financially drained from the rigmarole of Christmas, the last thing many people really want to do is drag themselves to a party or over-priced bar to drink even more and stay up way past bedtime.

If only the whole thing could be done six weeks later. Well, why not abandon your January plans and celebrate Chinese New Year instead?

New year is the longest festival in the Chinese calendar and in 2015 will be celebrated from Thursday, February 19, until Sunday, February 22.

London's Chinese New Year celebrations are reportedly the largest outside Asia and there are numerous events being held all over the capital for the event.

Ashley Guan, from the London Chinatown Chinese Association, says: "The year of the horse celebrations last year were some of the biggest we've seen and we estimate that the year of the sheep event in 2015 will be even bigger. The event goes across London on the Sunday and there will be parades going through Trafalgar Square, Leicester Square, Shaftesbury Avenue and Chinatown. We'll have more stalls and entertainment than ever before."

There are about 3,000 Chinese people living in the Kingston area and Chinese New Year celebrations in the borough have got more extravagant in recent years. A spokesman for the Kingston Chinese Association says: "New year is our biggest celebration and a key part of integrating with the local community."

"It is also a good chance for older people in the Chinese community to gather and celebrate together."

For more information about Chinese New Year in London, including information about how to volunteer, visit the London Chinatown Chinese Association at lccauk.com.

JOIN THE CELEBRATIONS: London's free Chinese New Year parade and celebrations bring some amazing sights to the capital. There will be a small ceremonial event on Saturday, February 21, with the main action on Sunday, February 22. Dragon dancers will hit the streets, and there will be special menus at many of China Town's restaurants. The event is free but booking of restaurants is highly recommended.

Relatively small changes can make a big difference to your wellbeing creating a warm and welcoming atmosphere in your home.

That's according to Penny Mosgrove, CEO of Quintessentially Estates and Quintessentially Home who says: "When preparing for the winter, it is essential to consider how your senses are impacted by the change in season and then take steps to counter these effects, from atmospheric lighting and warming scents to temperature control and tasty treats."

From energy saving to cosy interiors, relatively small changes in the home can make a big difference to your wellbeing. Equally, with rising energy prices, it is all the more important to try to keep your bills down."

She has come up with this list of small improvements which make a big difference.

Deal with drafts: Insulating attics and draft proofing windows and doors will ensure you can enjoy comfortable indoor temperatures year-round, as well as making the home more economical. Gaps can be sealed with self-adhesive draft strips or, for a quick fix, under door drafts can be remedied with a fabric draft excluder.

Keep it consistent: Set your thermostat at a consistent temperature level such as 22 degrees Celsius; this will avoid the temptation of switching the heating on for one big blast of heat. It is also worth checking your insurance policy to make sure you are protected for winter emergencies.

Cosy up this winter

Winter maintenance: Arrange for someone to clean the leaves and debris out of your gutters to prevent drainage problems and, whilst they're up there, ask them to check for broken or loose roof tiles and make sure the TV aerial is secure.

Fire lighters: there is nothing quite like sitting in front of a roaring fire, so if you have an open or gas fire place, ensure the flue is clear and arrange for a chimney sweep to come once a year.

Security measures: If you are leaving your property unoccupied, invest in some Time Guard electronic switches so that your lights still go on and off each day. Don't advertise what you got for Christmas by leaving the boxes outside.

Let there be light: A cosy interior will undoubtedly take the chill out of the winter season and warm under-lighting can go a long way towards creating an inviting ambience; try fitting dimmer switches to soften the lighting or some strategically placed lamps also does the trick. Remember that replacing just one traditional bulb with an energy saving light bulb can save you on average £3 a year.

Set the tone: As well as the lighting, the mood of a room is primarily set by the colour palette and hues of furnishings; the addition of burnt orange, red and plumb coloured accessories help to add warmth to a room.

Snuggle up: Appeal to your sense of touch with sumptuous textures and fabrics; curling up on the sofa with a throw helps to beat the winter blues.

Are you paying too much?

New research reveals that 61 per cent of Brits are overpaying their gas and electricity bills, by £96 on average, which collectively means that energy companies are banking an extra £1.5bn of their customers' money.

The research, commissioned by Gocompare.com, also found the following:

■ Pensioners (aged 65 plus) are the most likely to be in credit (72 per cent), while customers aged 25 to 34 were least likely to carry a credit balance on their energy bills (48 per cent);

■ 15 per cent of customers surveyed had paid their energy supplier over £100 more than they needed to;

■ Only 22 per cent said that their energy supplier had refunded the overpayment without being asked to, 15 per cent said they had asked for a refund, while 46 per cent said that they prefer to leave their account in credit hoping it will sort itself out over time.

Details of the big six energy suppliers' refund policies can be found at ofgem.gov.uk

Are you caring, committed and patient?

Do you have experience of working with the elderly and those living with dementia in a care home or a similar environment?

We are a caring organisation which puts their resident's needs at the heart of what we do.

We have a number of posts available within our care homes in Roehampton, Barnes and Hampton and are looking for enthusiastic, motivated and caring people to join our dedicated teams.

Posts available include:

TEAM LEADER

SOCIAL CARE WORKER

NIGHT SOCIAL CARE WORKER

COOK IN CHARGE

Ideally you will have at least one year's experience, but a comprehensive learning & development programme is provided and there will be opportunities for career development for the right individuals. If you have a genuine desire to give the highest standard of support to our residents and want to become a member of our team then please apply.

All positions will require flexible shift and weekend working.

We are an equal opportunities employer, and do not discriminate on any on any grounds, other than ability to fulfil the role.

All positions are subject to pre-employment checks including

Do you have a caring and sunny personality?
Do you have the energy, passion and enthusiasm to deliver a service to the standards we expect for the people who live with us?

Exceptional People Required

Care Assistants

£19,890

In our wonderful modern and welcoming environment we are seeking additional staff to join the care team. You would be required to provide daily care support to older residents who are living with a dementia and also require nursing care. You should be outgoing, with a sense of fun, and have a flexible approach as no two days are ever the same. Do you wear your heart on your sleeve? Are you caring, patient and thoughtful? Can you work with people who may think differently to yourself?

Registered Nurses

£30,443

In addition to all the above and as a Registered Nurse who has a passion for supporting those living with a dementia, you will provide leadership to the care staff, be hands-on with a flexible approach to your work, as no two days are ever the same. Both roles are required to work a mix of early and late shifts between the hours of 7am and 9pm, on a set rota pattern.

If you think you can achieve the standards
we require please ring our recruitment hotline on 0208 481 7673 to request an application form or email us at

News

Loving their Leaf

More than half of Nissan Leaf electric car owners say they would never buy a petrol or diesel car again.

One owner reportedly even sold his Aston Martin to buy a second Leaf so that both he and his wife could use one every day.

These are just two of the claims made by Nissan GB following the company's first in-depth survey of its electric car customers in the UK.

An impressive 93 per cent of the 6,500 British owners say that they use their Leaf as their main family car, and 89 per cent report significant savings versus internal combustion-engined cars.

In September 2014 Nissan sold 851 Leafs; the most ever sold in one month in a European market.

STAR IN A CAR: TV critic Garry Bushell

Dreaming of a Jaguar XK8

Garry Bushell has been one of Britain's most feared TV critics for several decades. Currently writing his Bushell on the Box column for the Daily Star, he pulls no punches and leaves TV celebrities dreading the arrival of the paperboy. A rock music writer and musician, he has more than one string to his bow, including author and parliamentary wannabe. For more on Garry visit www.garry-bushell.co.uk or follow him on Twitter @GarryBushell

What was your first car?

It was a 10-year-old Singer Chamois, which looked like a Hillman Imp and felt like a motorised hair dryer. I bought it second-hand, probably more like fifth-hand in 1978 when I passed my test. I couldn't tell you how much it cost but as we were pot-less at the time, not much. Every time I filled up the tank it doubled in value. We moved on to a 76 Granada as soon as I could afford it.

How many times did it take to pass your test?

I passed at the second attempt because I had to – my eldest daughter was just about due and we needed the car for the hospital dash.

Who would be your ideal fantasy passenger and where would you go?

Someone funny would be ideal – so Billy Connolly or Denise Van Outen. I'd like to see places I've never seen before, like Iceland or southern Sweden, but would settle for the classic New York to LA trek – especially if we could stop off and see Chris Rock or Jay Leno live en route.

What is your dream car?

The mighty Aston Martin One-77 of course, it's beauty on wheels, but I can't see that dream ever becoming a reality. If you twisted my arm I'd put up with a Rapide, which looks nearly as good and steers better.

How would you describe your driving style?

Like a cross between Clarkson and Johnny Cab from Total Recall.

Tell me one driving anecdote from your past?

Only one? Iron Maiden singer Bruce Dickinson nearly killed me by accident when he drove us the wrong way onto a freeway into four lanes of oncoming traffic.

There was a collision, but mercifully a minor one. Scary as that was it wasn't quite as terrifying as being driven around Las Vegas by Engelbert...

What do you drive now?

We have just had our family Rav 4 written off in a road accident. A German aggregate lorry swung into us off a slip road on the M25 and so we're thanking our lucky stars – and Toyota for making the car so solid. The accident will give me a chance to argue for a Jag, probably a second-hand Jaguar XK8 Coupe. Once I'm over the concussion that is.

Porsche opens pop-up store

Porsche is joining the hipster set with the announcement that it is to open a pop up store – just in time for Christmas.

The German firm has chosen Westfield shopping centre in Shepherd's Bush, West London as its UK location, following the opening of a similar venture in New York City in September.

According to the high performance car maker, The Sound Of Porsche: Stories of the Brand offers an interactive, multi-sensory brand experience.

Visitors will have the opportunity to journey through the past, present and future of Porsche, with topics spanning the marque's core, intelligent performance, plus the Porsche principles of design, and historic highlights.

Over its three-week run, which ends December 28, The Sound of Porsche will provide not only an insight into the passion within the company, but also a glimpse into the world of Porsche for people who might not otherwise engage with the marque.

Surbiton down despite Grassick goals

Chris Grassick, right, scored 14 goals in eight games but it was not enough to prevent Surbiton's swift return to Indoor Fives Division One.

Surbiton lost all of their remaining four Premier League games at Burton's St George's Park over last weekend to finish bottom of the table after promotion last year.

The women head to Nottingham Trent University on Saturday for the first weekend of their indoor season.

Surprise medal: Kingston's Marcus Giles surprised himself with a bronze medal in an elite table tennis tournament at the weekend

Pleasant surprise

Kingston table tennis ace Marcus Giles beat some of the best young players in England to win an unexpected bronze medal at the Junior Masters, writes Stuart Amos.

The 16-year-old Hollyfields School student won eight of his 11 matches in the round-robin format tournament featuring England's top 12 junior stars.

Sixth seed Giles won his opening six matches in Harlow on Saturday, but was beaten by winner and top seed Helshan Weerasinghe, runner-up Tom Jarvis and third seed Danny Lawrence on Sunday.

"I'm really pleased with how it went. I thought my performance was solid the whole weekend," said Giles.

"I was sixth seed, so I'm pleased to have finished higher than I was expected to."

"I had some tough matches, but to have six out of six on day one, even though I was expected to win them, was good."

Job done

New Malden golfer David Woolmer celebrated a maiden hole-in-one over Christmas, writes Stuart Amos.

The 64-year-old 11 handicap player, below, holed the par-three 14th at Malden Golf Club and bagged an exclusive commemorative Boss watch to match.

He said: "I have been trying to achieve a hole-in-one for the past 26 years and finally managed it."

Gerrard tames Kingsmeadow's Beast

Star quality: AFC Wimbledon goalkeeper James Shea flaps as former England captain Steven Gerrard secures a 2-1 FA Cup third round win for Liverpool at Kingsmeadow on Monday night. Reds boss Brendan Rodgers' side struggled to overcome the League Two minnows with Gerrard proving the difference between the two teams. A capacity 4,784 crowd watched as the 34-year-old midfielder put his side in front, but Adebayo Akinfenwa levelled matters before half time. Gerrard, a veteran of 114 internationals, broke Dons hearts with a precise free kick. The result went some way to avenging Liverpool's 1-0 cup final defeat to the Crazy Gang in 1988

HOME TRUTHS: Legendary boss would answer call for help

Chapple there to help Ks

SPORTS EDITOR
STUART AMOS

samos@
london.newsquest.co.uk

Legendary Kingstonian boss Geoff Chapple has offered to help his old club a new home – and that could mean a groundshare with Conference Premier Woking.

Ks co-chairman Mark Anderson has confirmed the club has stepped up efforts to quit Kingsmeadow in the wake of news landlords AFC Wimbledon are looking to strike a deal to sell the ground to Premier League Chelsea.

The move, which would leave Ks homeless, hangs on whether the Dons' plans to build an 11,000-seater stadium in Merton are given the go ahead.

Ks still have at least five years left to run on their current tenancy agreement with AFC Wimbledon, but Anderson has revealed the board of directors have already identified three potential new homes.

Chapple famously lifted the FA Trophy twice with Ks at the turn of the century after 13 years at Woking, where he is now a director.

And he has not ruled out offering Ks the chance to play at Kingfield, where they once lifted the Surrey Senior Cup thanks to a 1-0 win over AFC Wimbledon.

"It is very sad to hear Ks are likely to leave Kingsmeadow. There is a lot of history there," he said.

"The club still has a special place in my heart and the ground holds lots of happy memories and I still have many friends there."

"My favourite is drawing with Cheltenham at home in the FA Trophy semi-final."

"It was the toughest draw we could get."

"We went on to beat them and then beat Forest Green in the final."

"If I were to receive a phone call from the powers that be at Ks asking if Woking could help in terms of a ground then I would do whatever I could."

Anderson said the club had been looking at prospective new home grounds "for the past couple of months", adding: "We have already identified two or three options that are open to us, and are very confident, whatever happens."

But he reckoned any call for help could still be years away.

He added: "It all depends on Wimbledon's success and Chelsea's continued desire to purchase the ground. As long as those two things carry on, then we carry on."

"If one of those things fell down, then we aren't back to square one, but we've got another five to six years left on our deal with AFC Wimbledon anyway."

Kingstonian stretched their unbeaten run to seven matches last week with a 1-1 draw at VCD Athletic on New Year's Day.

Midfielder Daniel Sweeney put Ks in front only for the hosts to level matters late on.

Ks host Tonbridge Angels on Saturday.

Pegged back: Daniel Sweeney netted his first league goal of the season in Saturday's 1-1 draw at VCD Athletic. Ks have now drawn four off their past six league games

Milestone: Jamie Byatt salutes his 100th goal in a 4-0 win at Horsham

Shock on Casuals agenda

AFC Wimbledon will go from being the hunter to the hunted when they travel to Corinthian Casuals in the next round of their London Senior Cup defence, writes Stuart Amos.

Casuals pulled off their own giant-killing on Monday when Jamie Byatt struck his 102nd goal for the club to add to one from Bamoussa Cisse in a 2-0 cup triumph at Conference South Bromley.

Byatt struck a hat-trick to pass the 100 goal milestone in a 4-0 win at Horsham on December 27, but had to wait until this week to add to his tally after games with Walton Casuals and Hythe Town were postponed.

The wins have eased concerns at King George's Field and boss Matt Howard wants more at Guernsey this week.

"Looking on current form, we're almost certain to get relegated," he said.

"The last 13 games, we had won just two and conceded 41 goals. We've only conceded 48 all season."

"We can't just rest. We need to put a run together now."

I KNEW THAT ONE: The answers to last week's sports quiz of 2014 are: 1. Women's Cup, 2. Reigate Priory, 3. £30m, 4. Fine art, 5. 5,000m, 6. Jason Puncheon, penalty, 7. 36, Dartford, 8. George Francomb and Adebayo Akinfenwa, 9. 4-1, 10. Three, 11. The horse came second in the Epsom Derby, 12. Fourth, 13. 12, 0-3 at Cardiff City, 14. Kevin Pietersen, 15. Aldershot, 16. Yannick Bolasie, 17. Dons 4-3 Cheltenham (Jake Nicholson), 18. 2010 Commonwealth 110m hurdles gold, 2010 European Championships gold.

TEAM BRONZE: Kingston & Polytechnic Harrier Mollie O'Sullivan led her U15 girls team to a third place finish at the Surrey Cross-Country Championships in Croydon on Saturday. O'Sullivan finished sixth in a time of 16 minutes 19 seconds with Scarlett Walker the next Kingston athlete home in 17:45. Isabella Busa (17th, 18:04) and Kathryn Bartle (36th, 19:23) were the other points scorers for Kingston.
